WHAT DO YOU THINK
Of a Merchant who Does Not Get any Business Because He Refuses to Advertise. Very Foolish!! Well Rather.

DEATH CLAIMS HIM.

General John McComb Passes Away.

THE END OF A GOOD CITIZEN AND SOLDIER.

The Remains Will be Buried With Military Honors on Sunday Next.

Gen. McComb Dead.

General John McComb died of heart disease at his home in Temescal yesterday afternoon. General McComb was an old-time newspaper man, who was managing editor and one of the proprietors of the Alta California when that journal was well known to a large circle of California readers.

In the National Guard General McComb was known and admired by guardsmen.

He gained promotion gradually and through all the successive grades from a non-commissioned officer to brigadier general commanding the Second Brigade. He was succeeded as commander of this brigade by General W. H. Dimond, and it is a remarkable fact and cited as a coincidence that both generals died on the same day.

General McComb's age was 67 years. He was born in New York, and sprung from Scotch and Irish stock. He came to California in 1849. On the journey hither, he was a fellow passenger with George K. Fitch, on the steamer Oregon.

Under the administration of Governor Perkins, the Board of Prison Directors appointed General McComb warden of Folsom State Prison.

He held the wardenship throughout Gov. Stoneman's administration, and during Waterman's regime was transferred to San Quentin as warden of that prison. The Prison Directors, under the Markham rule, removed him and appointed Warden Hale.

At the time of his death General McComb was secretary of the Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Children. He was a member of the Union League Club, past master of California Lodge of Masons, member of California Commandery of Knights Templar and the Veterans' Association of the National Guard.

During his career of editor of the Alta his life was threatened by an irate lawyer named Hayes—a man who had acquired a reputation as a fierce fighter. A scene occurred in the editorial rooms of the old Alta on California street one night, and the result was that Hayes got about the soundest thrashing that a retraction-demander ever merited.

General McComb leaves a widow, two sons, John J. and George S., and a daughter, Miss Lizzie McComb.

Funeral services will be held at the Masonic Temple at 2 p. m. Sunday. The dead general will be honored with a military escort to the cemetery.

Summer Schools Of Physics.

The summer school of physics in the University of California will open to-morrow. The courses will be under the immediate charge of Professor Slate of the Physics department, assisted by Dr Alexander. Both graduate and elementary work will be offered and credits offered after examination. The number who will attend school this year compares favorably with former and includes not only graduates of the University but many teachers from various parts of the State. The summer students will be in session for six weeks.

The Merchants' Exchange has at last given the fall exposition its indorsement. At last evening's meeting George L. Fish offered a resolution heartily indorsing it, and it was warmly supported by President Witcher, Theodore Gier and John A. Britton. The vote showed the organization to be in line on the exposition.

THE WEST END.

Republican Club Will Parade In Oakland Tomorrow Evening.

West Berkeley Republican Club.

The regular meeting of the West Berkeley Republican Club was held last evening and a goodly number of members were present. The minutes of the last meeting were read and approved.

The committee on by-laws presented a set which were read and adopted by the Club.

It was decided that the Club would turn out in the parade to be held on tomorrow in Oakland.

The members were requested to take the 7 o'clock train and meet at the southeast corner of Ninth and Broadway Oakland at 7:30 o'clock.

There being no further business the Club adjourned.

The Board of Education advertises in another column for school supplies and also for school furniture and desks.

Everybody should turn out to-morrow night and assist in ratifying the nomination of McKinley and Hobart.

A large number of Berkeley people are at Santa Cruz taking in the great water carnival that is now being held in that beautiful city by the sea.

The Peralta Hose company are making arrangements to receive their new hose wagon which will be ready for use next month.

Reports from Southern California state that the orange crop this year will not be half as large as last year, and that the young navel oranges are even now dropping from the trees in large numbers.

To-morrow will be North Berkeley day at Bath Beach and it is expected that a very large number of ladies and children will take advantage of it and visit the beach and take a bath in the waters of the bay.

It is said that new parties will take the management of Bates Gymnasium, and that this school which has been so long located in Berkeley, will go out of existence.

The Democratic State Convention held in Sacramento did not treat the Woman Suffrage representatives with even scant courtesy. Two years from now they will be appealing to the women for their votes and will be apologizing for the way they treated the ladies at Sacramento that appealed to them to insert a Woman's Suffrage plank in their platform.

Editor Thompson, of the Santa Rosa Democrat has but little love for ex-congressmen Geary and so he pulled the wires to defeat Geary for the nomination of delegate to the Democratic National Convention. This displeased Mr. Geary and yesterday when he returned to Santa Rosa and happened to meet Mr. Thompson, to whom he applied several vile epithets, Thompson evinced a desire to have nothing to do with the ex-congressman but as he continued to use insulting language, Mr. Thompson got mad and gave Geary a choking. Geary did not like this, so as soon as he was released, he got Thompson's thumb between his teeth and almost bit it off. Thompson then proceeded to thrash Geary in a manner that would have done credit to Corbett, and he would have probably made him a candidate for the grave yard had not friends interfered and taken Thompson off of his adversary. The leaders of the Sonoma County Democracy are not very harmonious, and this last event will make the relations very strained during the coming campaign.

NOT JUST YET.

New School Buildings Will Not Be Erected

IN TIME FOR THE BEGINNING OF THE NEXT TERM.

They Will Probably be Finished in Time For the Term That Commences After the Holidays.

Not This Year.

The new school buildings that are to be erected in Berkeley, as provided for in the recent special election, will not be ready for the opening of the next school year.

The special election gives to the Board of Education the sum of $22,500 to spend for new school buildings, the money to be raised by direct taxation. Though the tax levy will not be in for some months yet, it was thought that the Board of Education might let contracts for the buildings to be erected at once, the payment for them to be made when the tax money was collected.

Under this arrangement it was thought that the new buildings might be ready for occupancy by the opening of the next school year, but the idea of having them ready by that time has been abandoned, and the best that is hoped for is that the increased accommodations for school children will be available by the beginning of the second term of the coming school year.

A special meeting of the Board of Education will be held tonight, when bids will be received for the construction of an addition to the Lorin school by means of which it is hoped that much of the congestion that has hampered the work of teachers in the past may be corrected.

The addition to the school of the South End will consist of two rooms, and will be built at once.

Amusements.

The Nobles are doing a big business at the Oakland Theatre where they are playing now. Nobles' picturesque comedy-drama, "Love and Law." Mr. Nobles is seen to excellent advantage as the jolly Irish lawyer and Mrs. Nobles is at her best as Rita. The company are all well cast.

Max Steinle's popular song, "Forgive, Forget Those Angry Words," is being splendidly rendered by the Oakland Theatre orchestra this week. It is played as a cornet solo with orchestra accompaniment and warmly encored every night.

People kick because they have to pay a dollar to see an inferior "show." Now if they get a chance to see a first class performance at the Oakland Theatre at 30 cents as the highest price and they don't want to miss it. It's Milton and Dollie Nobles and they are booked for only one week more, so be wise and take in a good thing when it comes along.

H. D. Bourke left this morning for Napa.

Five thousand dollars worth of furniture. Grand closing out sale Friday and Saturday, June 19 and 20, at the Exposition Building, (Tabernacle,) corner Twelfth and Harrison streets. J. L. Lyon & Son will remove their entire stock of household goods to the Exposition Building, in order to secure room for display; also to convince the public that we are positively retiring from business, and everything must be sold this month, regardless of cost. We have such an endless variety of household goods, that we have not space to enumerate; in a general way, say: 30 oak and walnut chamber suits, 20 parlor sets, extra beds, bureau, folding beds, mirrors, mattresses, bookcases, pictures, bed-lounges, tables, chairs, etc. Remember the place, Exposition Building, June 19 and 20, at 10:30 a. m., 2:30 and 7:30 p. m., each day. The chance of a life time to secure bargains. Note—Everything must be sold this month, which will save four or five hundred dollars expense, which amount I would prefer to distribute among my customers. Everything must go. J. L. THE JUNIOR ORDER.

What The United American Mechanics Are Doing.

Junior Order News

The last meeting of Paul Revere Council, No. 28, Jr. O. U. A. M., was a very busy one. The first important business of the evening was the initiation of two well-known and highly respected citizens of our town into the mysteries of the Order. After the ritualistic work was examplified in Paul Revere's excellent manner, the election of officers who are to govern the Council till the end of the year, was the next order of business. The following were elected:

Councilor, J. Sherratt (re-elected); Vice-Councilor, A. Woods; Recording Secretary, W. Bissell; Financial Secretary, M. Geirvine, (re-elected); Treasurer, J. Schmitt, Jr., (re-elected); Warden, E. Stewart; (re-elected); Chaplain, J. Ayer; Conductor, P. Turman, (re-elected); Inside Sentinel, A. St. John, (re-elected); Outside Sentinel, B. Turman; Trustee, (long term), A. Wells; Delegate, (long term, to Alameda County Committee, Paolo Salisbury, (re-elected). The Councilor having been re-elected, Geo. Moeming holds over as Junior Past Councilor.

The following were elected members of the Membership and Grievance Committee:

Paolo Salisbury, (re elected), A. St. John, Geo. Moeming, (re-elected), A. Wells and J. Schmitt, Jr., (re elected), J. Sherratt, ex-officio as Councilor,

The officers will be installed on the 11th day of July by Paolo Salisbury, Deputy State Councilor for this district.

L. Judkins, P. C, Gen. Geo. Custer Council, No. 22, of Oakland, and other visitors were present at the meeting.

The Initiatory Degree Team of Paul Revere Council received an invitation to exemplify the ritualistic work of that Degree before Henry Clay Council, No. 34, of Oakland, at its earliest convenience.

A Union Meeting of all the Alameda County Councils of the Junior Order will be held in American Hall on the evening of the 27th inst, under the auspices of Paul Revere Council. The Commandery, California, No. 1, will also attend in a body; State Councilor H. C. Schaertzer, now in Denver in attendance at the National Council of the Order, will be present and make a report on the business done by that body. Lincoln Council, No. 2, of San Francisco, initiated 46 new members a week ago yesterday, and 34 at last night's meeting, 26 candidates are still awaiting initiation.

Was Wrecked.

For some time past a house built on a scow has been moored in the bay just below the Stockyards. During the its stay there a gasoline engine was placed in position and a propeller also placed in position and yesterday the curious naval structure was ready to sail. Just as the tide was turning the engineer started his engine, and the propeller began to churn the water and the boat was off.

It had not gone a great distance, when all of a sudden it began to sink and in a few minutes it was resting on the bottom of the bay. It went down so quickly that those on board had no time to get into the small boat that was trailing behind, so they had to leap into the bay.

The accident was witnessed from the shore and a couple of boats were dispatched to the rescue of the almost drowned mariners and they were brought ashore, and a pleasure trip of several week's duration had to be abandoned for a time, at least.

Boys and Girls.

The boys and girls are entering into the contest for the prizes that will be given by the GAZETTE to the boys and girls who bring in the largest number of coupons signed by advertisers of the GAZETTE from whom they make purchases of. The number of coupons coming into this office shows a large range of advertisers and it must be gratifying to them to have the proof that advertising is doing them some good.

The vote to day is as follows:

THE HIBERNIANS.

Of America Celebrate The Anniversary Of The Battle Of Bunker Hill.

A Pleasant Time.

The Ancient Order of Hibernians of America Division No 5 of Alameda County celebrated the anniversary of Battle of Bunker Hill, by giving its first entertainment and dance at Pythian Hall on Wednesday evening last. The hall was crowded with members of the order and their friends when the entertainment commenced at 8:30, the program of which was as follows:

Piano solo, Miss A. Cain.

Recitation—The Indian Chief's Reply, F. Gallagher.

Flute solo—Mr. Cahill.

Vocal Solo—I Long to see the Girl I left Behind me, Miss E. Acton.

Encore—The Rose of Tralee, Miss E. Acton.

Comic recitation—The man of many Names, Miss Lucy Ryan.

Violin solo—H. Andrews.

Vocal solo—A Boy's Best Friend is His Mother, Mrs. M. A. Sweeney, (Encore—The Battle of Bull Run).

Recitation—Popping the Question, Miss Lizzie Creed.

Violin solo—R. Smith.

Vocal solo—Beautiful Isle of the Sea, Percy White, (Encore—Out on the Deep.)

Piano solo—Miss Maggie Cain.

Recitation—The Family Fool, Johnny Gallagher, (Encore—Texas Cowboy.)

Aims and objects of the Order, President J. M. Doyle.

At the conclusion of the programme, the floor was cleared and dancing was commenced and continued until 11 o'clock, when refreshments were served in abundance by the lady-friends of the Order. When all had supplied the inner man, dancing was again assumed and kept up until the "rosy morn stood tip-toe upon the misty mountain tops."

The very successful entertainment reflected great credit upon B. Sweeney, J. Carney, J. Doyle, M. J. Acton, C. J. Toomey, G. Creed and J. B. Malley, who constituted the committee of arrangements.

Rolling In.

There is no abatement in the GAZETTE'S telephone and telegraph girls contest, and the coupons and subscriptions which entitle them to a large number of votes keep rolling in, and the contestants are getting up in the thousands and bid fair to far eclipse the number of votes cast in the teachers contest that was recently exciting.

Miss Cain went up nearly 500 votes today and Miss Brackett went up 277 votes, Miss Keenan made a jump also and so did Miss Gibney.

Votes are now beginning to arrive by mail quite regularly, which shows that the GAZETTE'S circulation is spreading rapidly over the country, something that advertisers should keep their eyes upon.

The vote today is as follows:

Lelia C. Brackett, Berkeley	1778
Miss Freda Leuders, Berkeley	837

GETTING READY.

For The Opening Of The Oakland Exposition.

Getting Ready

Work on the county exposition to be held in August commenced to-day. Unlike last year, the whole of the block on which the exposition buildings stand will be fenced in and will be made attractive. The grounds will be laid out with taste and will be one of the features of the show.

Last year the exposition was originated and opened within thirty days and was, naturally, a very crude though very successful one. It was held at Christmas and was in the nature of a midwinter show, and it was, therefore, impossible for there to be any fruit or flower display. By holding it in August, there will be no limit to the supply of flowers and some noteworthy displays have been promised.

Work was begun to-day on the big fence that will enclose the plot. Plows have also been put to work to break up the soil, and gardens will be planted at once. There will be little Japanese tea-houses and out-of-door displays, and many attractions not thought of, or not possible, last Decem, ber.

Craigie Sharp, the superintendent of the exposition, is now touring the interior of the county in the interest of the affair. Every town will be visited and will be asked to make a display. Livermore has fallen in line, and the League of Progress will see that the valley upholds its reputation. San Leandro has a Board of Trade, and several other towns have local organizations, all of which will undoubtedly respond.

In connection with the exposition is the permanent exhibit of the Oakland Board of Trade, which will be opened after the exposition in the large Hall of Records, which is at present vacant. Many of the exhibits will be transferred to the permanent exhibition room and will be kept in order for the purpose of establishing a place where visitors can see the products and manufacturing development of the county to advantage. The interior towns will also have exhibits there and the whole affair will be under the direction of Craigie Sharp, who is also secretary of the Board of Trade.

Now that the Merchant's Exchange and the Board of Trade have signified their intention to work hand in hand with the exposition, which is an incorporated body, there is no doubt that the show will be an elaborate and successful one. The executive committee is now busy laying its plans and will soon announce its readiness to receive applications for space.

The flags about town were flying today in honor of the nomination of William McKinley for President of the United States on the Republican ticket.

OUR STANDARD BEARERS.

The next President of the United States was nominated yesterday at St. Louis on the first ballot, and the people of this Union have said to their representatives that they did well.

His running mate for Vice-President will be Garrett A. Hobart, of New Jersey, a man who will add more strength to the already impregnable ticket.

It is an ideal ticket. Its candidates suit the platform, the emergency and the needs of the country as well as they suit the desires of the people. William McKinley is a man whom the Republican party delights to honor.

He was a soldier and when the dark clouds of war enshrouded this country he shouldered his musket and went to the front as a private, and when the war was ended he was a major, and for that he is beloved by the whole people.

He is also a statesman and his name is synonymous with prosperity. When he was a member of Congress his constant cry was protection to American labor and for American products, and he sounded that cry until a bill favoring protection was passed and which bears his name, which is now a household word in every home in America.

He is to the American laborer, the champion of work and wages, the advocate of the American system, the man who will set the wheel of industry running, brighten the fireside of every home and lighten the burdens of every heart.

The nomination of McKinley at this time and at this crisis in our government is equally as important as the nomination of Abraham Lincoln forty years ago. There are other good Republicans within the ranks of the party that would make good Presidents when everything is running smoothly but at this time William McKinley is the only man in the United States, who as President can lead this country back to its old time prosperity. The masses of the people irregardless of politics have so declared, and when on the third day of next Novemer they cast their ballots, they will be overwhelmingly in favor of William McKinley and protection. He is the man who will put a stop to the other nations of the world enriching themselves at the expense of the United States.

The lamented James G. Blaine had this to say of Cleveland's free trade doctrine. "It is into this vast field of home trade—at once the creation and the heritage of the American people—that foreign nations are striving by every device to enter. It is into this field that the opponents of our present revenue system would freely admit the countries of Europe—countries into whose internal trade we could not reciprocally enter, countries to which we should be surrendering every advantage of trade, from which we should be gaining nothing in return."

Cleveland allowed these countries to enter into competition with our wage earners and our manufacturers and the result is that inside of three years we have been placed upon a level with the pauper labor of Europe.

When the prosperity of the home is established when work is plenty and wages are high, then the people can turn to new issues and settle the money question with the everlasting might. We want protection now and the ticket headed by William McKinley is the one that will give it to us.

WHAT IS COMING.

The Republican party is now ready for battle and it will fight every issue in the campaign in a dignified manner and when the votes are counted on the third of November it will be victorious. Then will the country return to prosperity. Then will the wheels of all the great manufacturing institutions of the United States, which have been silent and still for the past three years, turn again.

Then will thousands of mechanics who are now out of work, once more find means to support themselves and families and educate their children. Capital that is now locked up in the vaults of the country will be taken out and disbursed among the masses in starting new enterprises that will give employment to thousands of men and women. All of these things will be possible for American industries will be protected, and consequently what we wear and what we use will be manufactured here by American laborers at American wages instead of in Europe at pauper wages. The first act of President McKinley when he assumes the reins of government will be to call a special session of Congress for the purpose of passing a tariff bill, and a bill for the restriction of foreign immigration.

These two bills must be passed at once and our people should see to it that at the coming election Republican Congressmen and United States Senators are elected so that the President may be able to carry out the reforms that he has mapped out.

President McKinley will in no uncertain terms inform Spain that Cuba must be given its independence. We do not want any Armenian atrocities at our very door, such as is now going on in the Island of Cuba, and he will stop it.

GET IN LINE

Every loyal Republican in Berkeley should turn out to-morrow night and take part in the parade which is to be held in Oakland and the ratification meeting which will be held afterwards at the Tabernacle. Supply yourself with McKinley badges and buttons and show your colors. Any American can wear a McKinley badge without a blush of shame.

Berkeley should be well represented in the parade tomorrow night, and we believe that it will be. The West Berkeley Republican Club has prepared itself with McKinley badges and will turn out about one hundred strong. The Berkeley Republicans are requested to meet on the corner of ninth and Broadway at 7:30 o'clock when they will be assigned a position in the procession. Let every Republican attend and show his patriotism.

Notwithstanding the fact that McKinley will be elected. Every Republican in this broad land should go to the polls on election day and cast his vote for McKinley and protection. Popular candidates have often been defeated because the people thought it was a foregone conclusion and remained away from the polls.

McKinley was not nominated by the politicians but by the American people, and by them he will be placed in the White House, no matter how hard Platt and his minions may try to defeat him.

The National Republican ticket will be found at the head of our editorial columns in this issue, and they will remain there until after the election on November 3d.

DESOLATE.

O thou lyre, hasten with your song
Of grass-clad rare and tedious task;
Give me no respite from your long—
'Tis all I ask.

O strife and tumult of the day,
O toils and trials manifold,
Close in as thickly as ye may,
Loose not your hold.

To memory leave no briefest space
Seen curling, ray of dawning light,
For all too soon comes on apace—
Ah, God!—the night.

—Minnie Leona Upton in Century.

DOWN THE FLUME.

The snow lay deep in the Cœur d'Alenes—yes, more than that, the mining camps were "snowed in." I had not been long in the camp, and it was all new to me, so I naturally fled to Governor Bill, foreman of the Last Chance, during the exciting days of the great snowstorm. The miners gave him that name because he had gone to college with a governor of one of our eastern states. He was educated for the bar, but drink made him a miner, and now that he was reformed the company made him a foreman. When the storm commenced, the mills were all shut down, and the water which furnished the power was turned from the various flumes.

The day following the one of the heaviest snowfall it was reported at the lower end of the gulch that an immense snowslide had occurred during the night at the upper end. I procured a pair of snowshoes and hurried to the scene. The manager and Bill were superintending the working of scores of miners—in fact, all the available men.

"What's the matter, Bill?" I inquired.

"The men at the upper mill are buried in this mountain of snow," he answered.

"What! How many?"

"Four. You see, the miners at the boarding house there below escaped, but those who slept in the loft of the mill at the head of the gulch had no chance to leave."

Those who have visited the Cœur d'Alenes will recall how steep the buttes rise from the narrow gulches. At places you can scarcely scale them, and even the hardy pines can barely gain a footing.

The wind was now blowing in gusts, carrying clouds of snow from the buttes above, swirling down the slopes, eddying through the gulches and banking the white powder at the very feet of the miners. Shovels were powerless, but the men worked on in the firm belief that they would reach their comrades. But no one knew whether the old building had stood the strain and that the poor fellows were alive.

"It's no go, Mr. Bardon," Bill dejectedly said. "There is no telling how long the storm will keep up, and even if it soon subsides it will be days before we can reach them. Moreover, they cannot live long in that small building without air."

"I fear you are right, Bill. But it is all we can do," slowly replied the manager.

There was a momentary lull in the storm, when the governor remarked, with an anxious face: "Look at the streak down the butte. That must have been the path of the slide."

"Yes, it originated on the smooth flume." A blinding rush of snow from over the mountains shut out the view.

"The wind keeps the flume bare near the top of the slope," added the manager after we had shifted our positions, for the snow was drifting about us.

All day long the men toiled, and all that night reliefs were working, but progress in the shaft was slow, as the snow continually caved in or was carried in by the wind. During the following day and night there was no let up in the work. To me affairs looked more hopeful, for the storm had spent its fury and was now subsiding. That night I asked Bill how deep he thought the snow was where the men were working.

"It's a hundred feet if an inch," he replied, "and we have not made more than 40. Thirty more feet should bring us to the roof, but, you see, it becomes harder the deeper we get."

Evidently Bill did not take as hopeful a view of affairs. I had moved my bunk to the office building, and early the following morning I was aroused by a loud knocking at the door. It was the governor. He looked very determined and hurriedly said that he had planned a scheme, a side issue, during the night and wanted me to join him. Bill had not slept or eaten much since the slide, so worried had he been and anxious to rescue the buried men. He had several hundred feet of small, strong rope with him, and after a hurried breakfast at the officers' mess five of us set out on snowshoes.

"Which way, Bill?"

"To the flume," was all he said.

I did not urge him; it only irritates a strong man to ask him to disclose his plans in time of action. I decided to follow and await developments.

The ascent of the precipitous butte in the gray of morning was no easy task, but by taking a somewhat circuitous route, which followed a "hogback," we avoided the steeper slope and before long reached the exposed portion of the wooden flume.

"And now," said Bill, "we'll move down as far as we can along the flume."

We did so, and after traveling a short distance below the point where the snow first covered the flumking we dug several feet and cleared the boards.

The scheme had gradually unfolded itself to me. I saw it all now. Bill was going to have himself lowered down the flume and, if possible, through the 24 inch metallic conduit, which prolonged the flume at a short distance from the mill. Then he would trust to luck at getting through the turbine and into the building. And this was the man who, during the tumultuous troubles of a preceding summer, had stood loyal to the company, and with a few brave men had kept these same miners at the lower end of the gulch away from the company's works. Here he was now straining mind and body to rescue them.

An ax opened the passageway and revealed a dark space of about 2 feet by 4 feet in dimensions. Bill fastened the rope under his arms and lashed his revolver to the inner side of his right leg. "It will be a close fit in the conduit," said he, "but I will need the pistol to alarm the men, should I get to the mill. When the rope is pulled, haul away, and I hope each time you will have a heavy load."

We lowered away, and he disappeared. I felt peculiarly uneasy at seeing the generous fellow leave, though the scheme seemed so feasible that I could not see any danger involved. "If the flume is broken, we will haul him back," I reasoned. I knew he could not use his arms to signal while in the conduit, and I decided to haul away if none came within a reasonable time. The men at work below had suspended operations and stood gazing up at us in wonderment.

On arriving at our elevated position overlooking the gulch I had noticed a decided change in the weather. A "chinook" was blowing—those southwesterly winds which temper the climate of the west, changing within a few hours winter into spring, snow into water. Instead of the blinding snow of the day before, a drizzling rain at first set in, and within an hour had greatly increased in quantity. Surely those soft, gentle winds that bring life to freezing men and beasts as far east as the Bad Lands never bring destruction in their paths.

"This will pack and settle the snow," remarked one of the miners.

We did not then know what effect that would have on the flume. This sluice, which furnished water power for the mill, did not descend in a direct line, but took a diagonal course across the slope.

Bill reached the turbine safely, but had no room to spare the conduit. He told the men below that he felt very peculiar while making this part of the descent, fearful that by some chance he might be fastened there.

On reaching the turbine he fired a shot, but no reply of any kind was made. Then he fired two in succession, and soon the joyful answer, in the shape of hammering on the metallic pipe, greeted his ears. The men, poor fellows, thought the first shot was a breaking timber and listened to it grimly. They had braced the building as well as they could, and were awaiting their fate. When the two reports sounded, they felt sure it was a signal, and Emma Joe (he last worked at the Emma mine) said: "Rouse up, boys. Here is rescue sure."

At first, they afterward told me, it had not occurred to them that any one came down through the conduit. They thought a shaft had been sunk and that the first object encountered was the conduit. They ran to it and hammered—a dull reply, and there was no mistake as whence it came. Bill could only kick with his boot.

Weak and exhausted, they worked with desperate eagerness, and after some time removed the turbine. Down dropped Bill among them.

"Thank God, it's Governor Bill!" said Emma Joe. And then these rough, reckless men sobbed with joy.

"What's that, Bill?" Joe inquired.

"It's the snow settling. There is a chinook above. Come, hurry, you fellows, and we will leave this place."

The first man to go attached the rope, pulled at it and was hauled upward.

And the snow continued to settle.

Then two more were rescued and the rope returned.

"Go ahead, Bill."

"No, you, Joe. Hurry!"

"Why, old man, so anxious?"

"Just because the fellows above want to see you, Joe," he almost pleaded. Joe afterward said that Bill looked pale at this time and assumed indifference.

"The heavy snow might crush the flume, Bill."

"It won't crush it."

"Well, then, here goes. Goodby."

When Bill replied, Joe said, that he smiled like a woman.

Joe barely passed the point where the wooden flume was united to the conduit. The normal strain was separating them, the angle between them was becoming sharper and sharper, but he bent his body and thus passed through. Then with a horrible feeling he thought of Bill. "And this is why he hurried us," he groaned.

This was the reason. Bill noticed the break when he descended, and he knew what the creaking sounds from the conduit meant, but he never told the others. When Joe reached the surface he barely whispered, "Hurry and lower the rope!"

Too late!

The weight at the rope's end lodged. Joe knew where.

And then the miners dug with frenzy, for Bill was the pride of the camp. When the shaft, sunk through the snow, reached the mill, it was crushed. The strain upon it due to the watered snow had been too great. Governor Bill's body was found revolver in hand, and this told a story. Two days later there was as impressive a funeral at the Last Chance camp as was ever seen on the frontier. They buried him, not in wormy earth, but deep in the fragmentary rock of a played out stope of the mine.

They will tell you now among the Cœur d'Alene mountains of the governor hero of the Cœur d'Haleine, "heart of breath."—Lieutenant Herman Hall in Collier's Weekly.

Ways of Cats Along Shore.

"I suppose that all cats like fish," said a fisherman. "Cats that live along shore hunt for fish. They don't like water and they don't go into it if they can help it, but they seek the fish on the beach, and in boats that are hauled up, and in nets that are wholly or partly out of water at low tide. Sometimes they get caught in nets that they have visited in search of fish and are drowned in the rising tide."—New York Sun.

The Santa Cruz Mountains make up in charming picturesqueness what they lack in the fearful grandeur of the Shasta country, and their proximity to the sea gives the climate the delicious flavoring of the salt sea breezes. The locations are quickly reached, provisions are abundant, rates are reasonable, and opportunities for pleasureable diversions are limitless.

Those Camps are supplied with all the conveniences for camping, and provisions may be had in abundance cheaply on the grounds.

The Mountains of California are a Paradise for Hunters and Anglers.

Dentists are always warning their customers that frequent brushing of the teeth is absolutely necessary to guard them from decay, that the particles of food which lodge between the teeth must be removed after each meal, and that the mouth must be thoroughly rinsed, after taking anything acid into it, under penalty of the loss of teeth. And yet another danger confronts one.

A pretty young girl lately was obliged to visit her dentist, who, after investigating the condition of her mouth, told her that she was troubled with shrinkage of the gums and loosening of the teeth, and that in ten years' time she would find that they would all drop out. He added that this was the result of too much and too hard brushing of the teeth.

This peculiar mouth affection, whatever may cause it, is not so uncommon but that the writer has known of some half dozen friends who have been obliged to wear false teeth from no other disease than this very alarming one.—Philadelphia Press.

Valuable Shawls.

The Duchess of Northumberland possesses a shawl which was a present from Charles X, king of France, and which cost $100,000. It is made from the fur of a certain species of Persian cat, so fine and elastic that a single hair of the fur is scarcely perceptible to the naked eye. It measures eight yards square, and yet is so fine and elastic that it is possible to compress it into a large coffee cup. The empress of Russia possesses a large and valuable shawl, made and presented to her by the Copack women of Orenburg, which is as fine as a spider's web, and can be drawn through a wedding ring. To make a genuine cashmere shawl requires the fleeces of ten goats and the labor of several men for six or eight months. The queen of England receives as an annual tribute from the chiefs of a native state in India three pairs of the finest cashmere shawls and 12 perfect shawl goats.—New York Ledger.

Notice of Street Work

NOTICE IS HEREBY GIVEN: THAT ON the 8th day of June, A. D., 1896, the Board of Trustees of the Town of Berkeley passed its Resolution of Intention, number 120 A, to order the following street work to be done, viz:

That Cedar street in said Town from the easterly line of Oxford street to the westerly line of Lookout Place be macadamized and guttered to the official lines and grades, and wooden crosswalks over gutters be constructed as follows: Two at Spruce street, four at Arch street, four at Spring street, five at Scenic avenue and four at Euclid avenue, and that wooden crosswalks be constructed as follows: One at Spruce street and one at Arch street, and that wooden culverts in line with gutters be constructed as follows: One at Spruce street, two at Arch street, one at Spring street, one at Scenic avenue and one at Euclid avenue; and that 8 inch iron-stone pipe culverts be constructed across said street as follows: One on the easterly side of Arch street, one on the westerly side of Spring street, one on the easterly side of Euclid avenue, and one across the northerly sidewalk about 200 feet east of Euclid avenue, and that a wooden culvert with crosswalk be constructed across Cedar street at Arch street. The location of all culverts, crosswalks over gutters and crosswalks shall be shown upon the Engineer's plans for said work. The gutters on the northerly side of said Cedar street from Oxford street to Arch street shall be five feet in width, from Arch street to Spring street six feet in width, and from Spring street 350 feet easterly five feet in width, and from 350 feet easterly of Spring street to the easterly end of the work four feet in width. The gutters on the southerly side of said Cedar street, shall be four feet in width

All gutters shall be of stone and shall be grouted. All work shall be done in accordance with the specifications therefor adopted June 8, 1896, by Resolution No. 186 A.

For further particulars reference is hereby made to said Resolution on file in the office of the Town Clerk.

Cowslip and Bachelor's Button.

The name of cuckoo flower is given to at least 10 different plants, cowslip to 8 or 9 and bachelor's button to more than 20. It is the same all over the world. Sir Joseph Hooker says that "throughout his travels he was struck with the undue reliance placed upon native names of plants," characterizing it as "an erroneous impression that savage and half civilized peoples have an accurate knowledge of objects of natural history and a uniform nomenclature for them." Dioscorides made the same observation, and Athenæus before him complained that the same plant was called by different names in different parts of Greece.

It is, indeed, well known that plants have exchanged their names largely. The forgetmenot is a good instance of this. In all the old herbals the name is given to the ground pine (Ajuga chamoepitys) on account of its offensive smell, and sometimes, also, to the speedwell. Mills, in his "History of Chivalry," invented the legend of the drowning knight throwing the flower to his lady and fixed the name on the pretty blue flower which had previously been called mouse ear, from its old Greek name, myosotis, and both name and flower became popular, but Punch, going back to its original associations, suggested it as a delicate name for the onion, and in Mexico the same name, "no me olvide," is given to an orchid. Cloie is another name that has been given to various plants. In the old glossaries and herbals it always means the great burdock, but it was gradually attached to other large leaved plants, and in Dorsetshire it is now given to the yellow water lily.—Quarterly Review.

Scotch Farm Laborers.

During the last 10 or 12 years we have witnessed in Scotland an enormous decrease in the number of "hands" employed in agricultural work. In 1871 there were in Scotland 165,096 farm servants, in 1881 there were 149,765 and in 1891 only 120,770. Doubtless more than one cause has contributed to this result, but in the main it must be traced back to two great central facts. (1) During the last 20 years large tracts of arable land have gone out of cultivation. (2) During the same period there has taken place an enormous displacement of hand labor by machinery. Take the effect of but one single invention. During the past few seasons self binding reapers have rapidly sprung into popularity.

According to The Agricultural Economist, reaping and tying corn by manual labor used to cost from 8s. to 10s. per acre, but with the new machines it costs only from 1s. 6d. to 2s. 6d. per acre. In other words, some 20 or 30 youths can now perform the work that formerly required 50 able bodied men and an equal number of young lads and lasses. This is but one example out of many. True it is, a limited number of those crowded out peasants may, and doubtless do, find employment at some of the various kinds of unskilled labor, even in a comparatively overstocked city market. Nevertheless, the inevitable result of all this must be the intensification of the unemployed problem in town and country alike.—Westminster Review.

How It Seemed to Her.

The young man who aspires to be the life of the party had been indulging in what he was pleased to consider witticisms concerning the breakfast coffee, and others had feebly endeavored to follow his example. The landlady looked worried and weary, and when the jocese resources of the boarders had been exhausted she ventured to turn the conversation.

"I have been reading about Joan of Arc," she said.

"Was she any relation to Noah's ark?" asked the aspiring young man.

"She was a very remarkable woman."

"There isn't anybody now who could equal her for courage," replied the man who is always serious.

"Oh, I don't know about that," the landlady replied. "She could ride horseback and fight, but she knew that her work would be recognized some time. But there are different kinds of bravery. I have an idea that if Joan of Arc had been confronted with the task of keeping a boarding house to suit some people that I know she would have put her furniture in the hands of an auctioneer before the first month of her lease was up."—Detroit Free Press.

The Flight of Geese.

Wild geese conduct their migration in an extremely methodical fashion. The birds form themselves into lines shaped like an old fashioned drag or harrow. Sometimes there are two rows, one behind the other. There are always distinct leaders, but these very soon tire, and by careful watching with a glass one may see the leaders drop back and others take their places. It has been suggested that this arrangement is on the principle of a ticket office window, and that all of the ganders successively take the leadership. When weary, they fall back to the rear and others come up. If the flock is scattered by shot or accident, they may immediately form again.—New York Ledger.

After the Long Arctic Night.

The inhabitants of the little villages in the arctic circle have nearly three months of steady night. It is the annual custom that on the day when the sun rises above the horizon after the long season of darkness the inhabitants all stand in line, facing the returning orb, and greet it with a military salute. No other effect than that of paleness of complexion is discernible in the natives after this long time at night. The pallor soon passes away with the sun's return. In Bodo the surrean be seen at midnight on June 8; in Tromso it can be seen on May 20; in Hammerfest, or as far as the North cape, the midnight sun may be seen as early as May 13 or 16.—New York Herald.
